

How do I sign into Covered California?

Welcome to Covered California.

Logging into your account is easy because you can sign in from anywhere on the website. Whether you are previewing your eligibility or reading up on new policies adopted by Covered California and decide now is the time to apply for health coverage, signing in is always one click away. All you need is your Covered California Username and Password.

Just click on the Log In link in the header to get to the Log In page.

By the way, this is where you should go if you forget your password. You can also create your account here if you haven't already. To sign in, start by typing in your username, and then type your password.

When finished click on the Log In button. Here's an important note, if you enter your password incorrectly three consecutive times, Covered California will lock you out of your account for 24 hours. At this point, you can try resetting your password, call the Covered California Service Center for help, or wait 24 hours to log in.

If this is your first time logging in since creating your account, the Security Questions page will display. Covered California uses the security questions and answers to verify your identity when additional security is needed.

Select a security question, and then type in your answer. Repeat this process for all five questions, then Continue.

The Coverage for Individuals and Families page is now your new homepage.

The header includes all of the links that were available on the Covered California Homepage, including Online Chat and Find Help Near You. Here you will also see your name and the Log Out link.

When logged in, you have access to your Secure Mailbox where you receive communications from Covered California. Access it by clicking on the link in the header.

Now that you've logged in and are familiar with your home page, go ahead and start your application by clicking Apply Now.

For more information, contact Covered California.